Additional Resources for Teaching Development

- CETL Teaching Enhancement Consultations and Class Observations Having a challenge in class? Want to know if something you have tried in class is working? You can request a confidential consultation or an observation by a CETL professional to help you diagnose any challenges, or evaluate a classroom innovation.
- Graduate Certificate in College Instruction (GCCl) <https://gcci.uconn.edu/> - GCCl is a 9-credit program for individuals interested in deepening their theoretical and practical understanding of college teaching.

There are lots of resources online too, if you want to read about best practices (though we recommend interacting with people to make the learning process deeper and more meaningful. CETL has institutional accounts for The Teaching Professor and Magna Digital Library, the National Center for Faculty Development and Diversity (NCFDD)

To obtain your subaccount for

- NCFDD: register using your UConn email at <https://www.facultydiversity.org/>
